Starting at 3.0.0 The finished game will be on the Games page. The download page will just contain links to the mod. You will find the latest version of the mod on the Releases page Change history At the start of the project, I planned the graphics to be especially rough compared to other projects with this kind of budget. But it turned out, that other graphics are more colorful and more detailed. So I did not feel like I have to redo the graphics. It would have been really difficult to change graphics quality without making the game harder and less accessible. Only thing that is missing is a landscape that can be found in a lot of video games, e.g. Skyrim, but not right in my project. I guess it will be the most known feature to players. For some time now, I have sold the game and am not sure if I will be able to finish it anymore. Feel free to finish it, it is open source so you can add whatever you want. It will be possible to add sounds. There is a place on the world of the universe (Spacer.) where the sound of rushing wind could be added. For the c9d1549cdd

 - Part 2 It's a beautiful day - Easter Sunday - and Luke and I are awake early. Today, I'm going to the services at St. Mary's as Luke will be going to Our Lady of Perpetual Sorrow, an Anglican church here in Greenville. It's an English church. Luke believes in segregated churches and he likes the idea of Mass in Latin, I don't. I would prefer the service in English. Luke wants to learn the language so now and then I can't stop him, I have to go with him. When I went to Mass at St. Mary's today I was struck by how small the church is and how small the congregation is. There are maybe a hundred people attending. I understand that most of the people who attend this church - Our Lady of Perpetual Sorrow - are Anglican. They are from the Indian Coast, mostly, and have been Anglican since the early days of the British. There are a lot of Scottish people here also. There is a lot of East Indian influence here. People from London have moved here. Some people have been here for generations, others are recent arrivals. And there are a lot of young families here. It's a family church, but one where there are many children, many children attend. The families are all very visible. There is a children's choir, too, at this church. I was struck today, listening to these children's voices, the way they sang. I'd never noticed it before, but it was very strong today. These children are vibrant! They have great voices! It's a beautiful service. The priest is performing a lot of the parts of the service himself instead of telling people to do it. He tells them what the part means and what he wants them to sing. Today, there are no children's parts so the children who accompany the adults on the choir sing, "Give Us this Day Our Daily Bread" and the first reading. Then there is a hymn, then there is more of the choir and then a hymn again, then a prayer, then the second reading. Then the priest reads from the Gospel. Luke goes with me to this Christian church but he is Jewish so he could be out of place. Luke believes that Jesus was Jewish - not merely Jewish with a beard - but he believes that Christianity came out of Judaism and that Christianity is a fulfillment of Jewish belief. He's learning a lot from these
